

1

GOALS

Preparing yourself for your session is an important step in helping you achieve your identified goals. That way, you will be able to better deal with the unexpected, as well as being more confident with how you lead discussions.

A question you can ask yourself before going any further: Will a round table help you reach your goals? Did you answer “yes?”

What you can do:

Establish the goals you want to achieve with the round table:

- Set the intended goals of the round table
- Decide the type of round table you want to conduct
- Choose the theme or topic
- Give a title to your round table by including the theme or intended goals.

Conducting a round table isn't the best way to meet your needs?

Here's a list of other possible activities:

- World Café
- Fishbowl
- 1-2-4 all